

EXPERIENCES WORTH KNOWING

Learning the Language of Life: A Regenerative Retreat

October 12—15, 2018, Laurel Highlands

Why do you work on green building projects? Create a more sustainable world? For most of us, it boils down to a love of life, which includes our fellow humans, of course, but perhaps it's more than that? . . . and that just begs another question: what is the nature of this life we are trying to sustain? 7group has been actively engaged in exploring what lies beyond technical green building strategies and projects within an integrative process. This exploration calls us to shift our aim and direction completely – away from simply doing less damage and toward regenerative design principles that serve living systems. This is the next evolution in green building design. It requires shifting into a different perspective, different ways of knowing and a different mind. Experience our world in new ways.
